Two Violins

Classical Elegance

Violinsanity, a violin duo, is the perfect choice for music to charm the guests at your next event. Their repertoire of chamber music spans a broad spectrum of styles and composers ranging from Baroque and Classical, to tastefully-arranged folk songs and dance music, to popular romantic ballads.

Violinsanity violinists, Dominique Agnew and Becky Ross are available to play for all occasions in the Maryland-D.C.- Northern Virginia area including weddings, parties, receptions, and various fundraising events. With advance notice, they are happy to create an arrangement of your special musical request. They also have a large selection of Christmas music to brighten holiday parties, from traditional carols to modern holiday favorites as well as classical standards such as selections from Handel's Messiah.

Dominique Agnew began playing the violin at age eight and studied privately with Angelo Gatto. She played with the Maryland Youth Symphony Orchestra through high school and with the Maryland Symphonette for three seasons. Since then, she has focused on raising her family while accompanying the choirs of St. Louis de France, St. John Neumann (including their Italian concert tour in 2001), and Our Lady of the Presentation Catholic Churches. With Violinsanity, she is enjoying her return to professional playing. Mrs. Agnew offers private violin instruction.

Becky Ross was classically trained on violin as a child and was drawn to begin playing again after discovering Celtic fiddle music. She performs with several Celtic groups and plays regularly for English and Scottish Country Dances. She also gives Scottish fiddling lessons. Becky accompanies the St. John Neumann Church choir (including their Italian concert tour in 2001). As part of Violinsanity, she is enjoying the return to her classical roots.
